PURPOSE, DESCRIPTION, AND OBJECTIVES

Purpose:

The VT-P2P is a new federally funded project providing information to Vermont children and youth with disabilities who experience many challenges transitioning successfully from high school to adulthood. This project brings together a broad array of partners who understand their needs and are positioned to create enhanced pathways to successful employment and postsecondary outcomes. Creating an inclusive web-based portal with comprehensive, accessible information is critical to this project's success. Through the website, youth, families, and VT-P2P partners will have access to a tool that explains adult services and the postsecondary opportunities available to youth and young adults in an easy-to-understand and intuitive-to-navigate format.

The web site must be flexible and user-friendly while capable of delivering large amounts of constantly changing information to our key audiences. In addition to a user-friendly site with an intuitive and accessible interface, the website must include a web-based, database-driven administration tool that allows key management personnel to easily update content without accessing source code.

VT-P2P will maintain editorial and administration control of the content on the website, preferably by using a system with a browser-based user interface.

To be effective, the web site must be:

- Accessible following the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) standards

Objective:

VT-P2P's objective is to provide a comprehensive information web-based portal where youth and young adults with disabilities, their families, and professionals can access valuable and current information for transitioning from high school to successful employment and postsecondary outcomes.

VT-P2P Vision for web site:

- Improve self-advocacy of youth with disabilities by providing readily accessible information via an easy-to-use web site.
- Improve student with disability transition outcomes by empowering them with the comprehensive information needed to develop ambitious transition plans that create meaningful pathways and outcomes in postsecondary education and employment.
